Memories

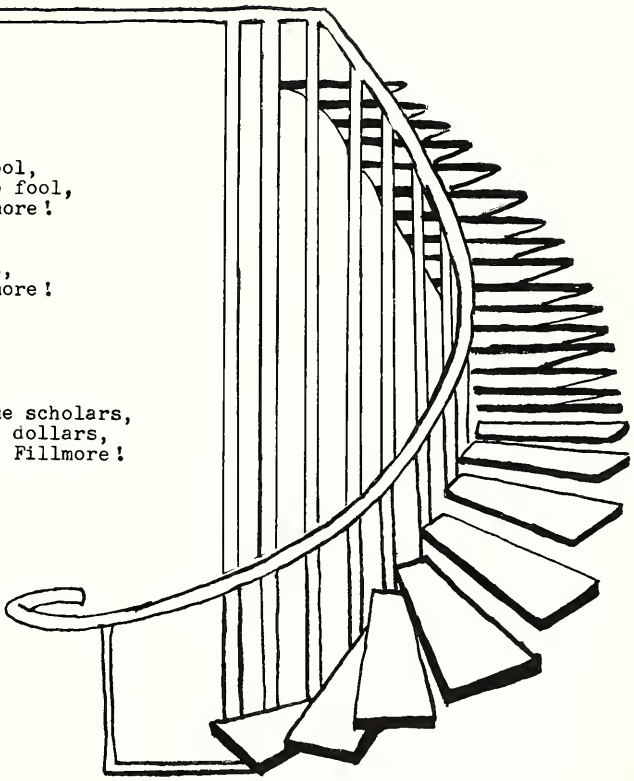
If you like to go to school,
And you don't go there to fool,
Then you must go to Fillmore!

If you see a pretty lass,
Who really has some class,
Then she must go to Fillmore!

To find a bunch of lads,
Who don't resemble cads,
You just go to Fillmore!

If you're looking for some scholars,
Who'll be worth a million dollars,
Then you'll have to go to Fillmore!



Presented by the students of W.C.H.S.

DEDICATION

In recognition of his continued efforts in the field of teaching generally and athletics in particular, the students of Wesley Central High respectfully dedicate this edition of their yearbook to Mr. Wm. Hancock, a very active teacher and citizen of this community for the past decade.

ADMINISTRATION

Principal's Message

Many of you who are reading this yearbook have already spent several years of your lives in this school; others have just recently joined us; still others have by now left us to join the ever-growing numbers of those who can look back and say with some degree of truth and pride: "The best years of my life were spent in Wesley Central High."

Too often we tend to consider a school as merely a place and a time wherein and during which we prepare young people for life: in a sense we divorce school from real life, at least in our minds.

Although I have during the past 8 years helped many a student write sections of your yearbook, this is the first time that I have an occasion to say officially how I feel about school and if there is any real message that I would like to transmit to you and in particular to those whose schooling has not yet come to a close it is this: School Is Life; it is not merely a remote preparation for life. Live your school life fully but intelligently; live it with ambition and restraint, open-mindedness and fixed goals, honesty and dignity. Expect a great deal of others, but be ready to give much more: of your time, your energy, your talents, yourself.

Stress is being put these days on the aspect of change--rapid and drastic change--being experienced by man in his world. May it never be forgotten that at the basis of all change there is an element of stability without which all would end up as chaos. Personal and social qualities such as the above will always form the basis of a sound society and will always raise an individual above the rest of the things that surround him. And is this not the chief aim of education, to raise him above his surroundings?

School Board

A. C. Carignan

Since Socrates philosophized on the nature of things related to the moral and social compulsions of man's nature; since Newton contemplated the scientific and technological implications of the falling apple, man has persisted, some times haphazardly by a series of accidental incidences in the earlier stages, to an organized frontal assault in our later stages, on the stubborn though yielding forces of ignorance and illiteracy.

This search for knowledge has brought to light some of the most amazing and exciting revelations in the field of technology and science as to open up whole new vistas in man's universe, and freeing him progressively from the menial drudge.

The age of geographical discovery that was thought to have ended with Columbus is now born into a new age of interplanetary discovery with endless possibilities.

A candle set in the darkness of the early beginnings relieved the blackness, but the surrounding shadows concealed intriguing, sometimes frightening, mysteries. The intense light of today's knowledge set in the darkness has thrown the shadows farther back and immensely enlarged the circle of light; but it has also increased the circle of darkness and now a multiplicity of intriguing shadows await our investigations into infinitude.

So, like Columbus we say, press on into the shadows, into the unknown, for we may yet discover in the shadowy half-light, the elixir of life and bring such brilliance to bear as to allow the lurking evil no recourse but to flee in confusion from the blinding light.

Yearbook Staff

EDITOR....Viola Shotter

As editor of the 1968 yearbook, I am grateful for this opportunity to express my appreciation to all who worked to make this yearbook possible. We feel that special thanks should go to our advisor who helped us over our many difficulties, and to the business men of Fillmore and Osage whose financial assistance was deeply appreciated.

Our best wishes go out to the graduating class of '68. On behalf of my staff I would like to wish them success in this, their last year at Wesley Central High, and in all the years to come.

To the next yearbook staff, we say this "Plan ahead and work hard to make your yearbook the best."

The annual High School curling bonspiel was again a great success. It was held on Feb.3 & 4,1967,and on Feb.5 & 6,1968,with almost all the students turning out to take part in the activities. Good sportsmanship was displayed throughout the entire event, and I'm sure all had an enjoyable time. Blair Buchan and his rink swept their way to the aggregate last year, and this year the rink of Dave Johnstone leaped to the top. Congratulations to you both!

Houses

The House system was introduced in the 1966-1967 term, under the direction of Mr. Hancock. Grades eight to twelve inclusive are divided into four groups known as Houses and compete with each other for top points in sports activities and academic studies. Points are given for participation in such things as basketball, badminton, table tennis, volleyball, football, track and field and others. At the end of the year the points are totalled and the House with the largest score is declared the winner for that year.

The four Houses were dubbed Kent, Dover, Shannon and Breckenridge. Each chose a distinguishing color scheme: Breckenridge-Blue and Gray; Dover-Burgundy and White; Shannon-Black and Gold; Kent-Green and White; a leader to organize and a secretary to keep the records. New officers are elected every year.

The winner for the 1966-1967 year was the House of Shannon.

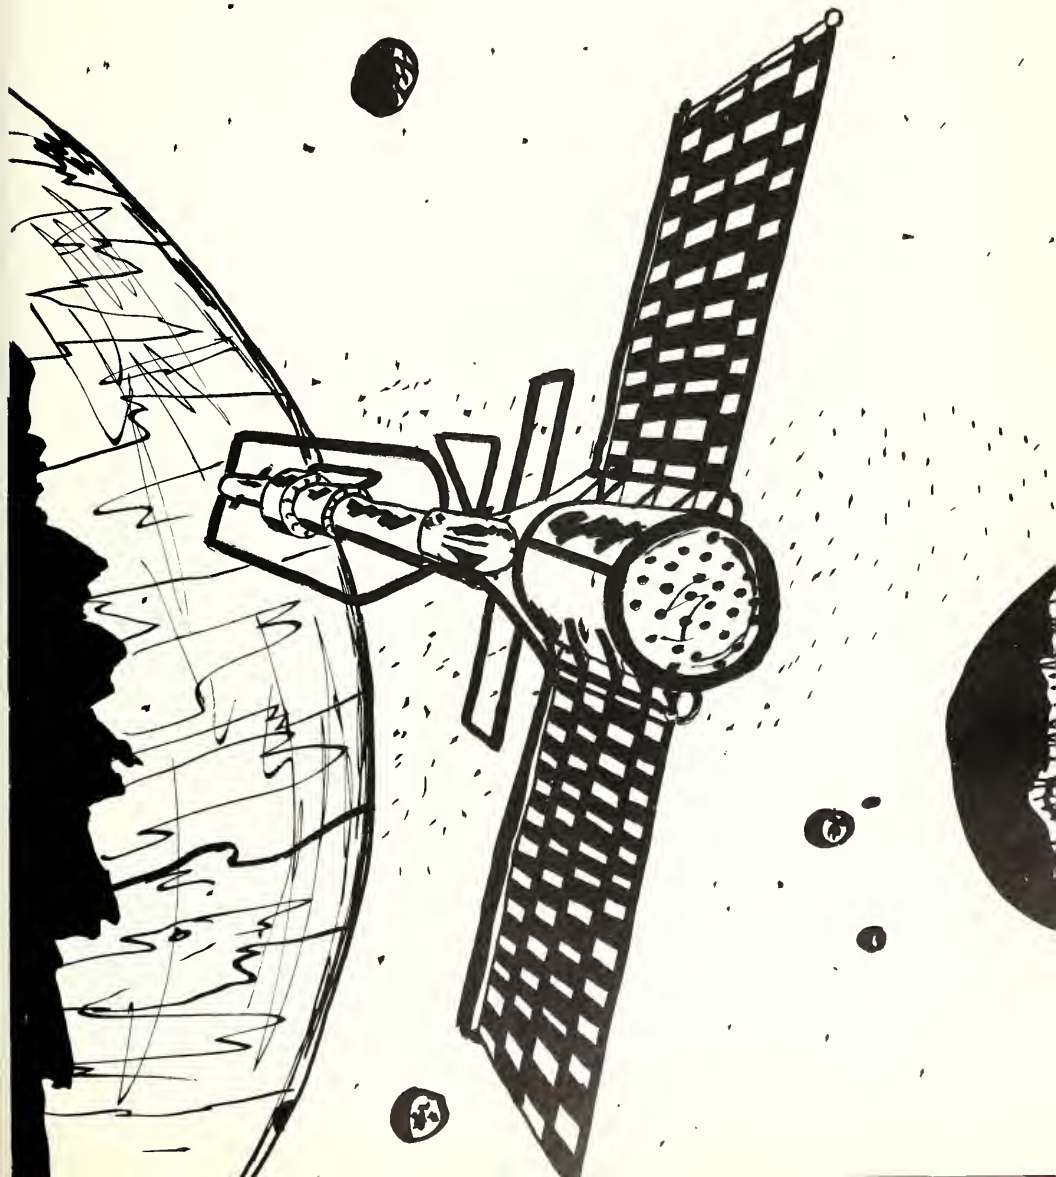
ACTIVITIES



INITIATION 1966

Um..good.

Ain't she sweet?

Pretty please?

On September 23, the '66 initiates entertained the school with the funny faces and ridiculous jobs given to them by Grade 12. In the evening, Grade 11 took over, and chose Sharon Hofmeister and Jeff Stellick as Freshie King and Queen. The day's activities really showed these people to be excellent sports and the day was an immense success.

Howdy folks!

The '67 initiates suffered a grueling day under the hand of the Grade XII's on September 22 and were put to the test by the Grade XI's in the evening. All of the initiates put on a fine display of good sportsmanship and in the evening Susan Lackey and Edwin Fahlman were chosen as the '67 Freshie King and Queen.

MONDAY MORNING REVERIE

Our teachers have a theory
That we come to school to rest,
When our weekends make us weary;
It makes me so depressed.

So I beat the bell to classes,
Fold my hands within my lap,
Close my eyes behind my glasses,
Just to take a little nap.

Our teachers all are noisy
To a horrible degree,
They tell me to be silent
When they're talking more than me!

But 'spite of all their drawbacks
I really am improving,
I do such loads of homework,
To finish up my schooling.

MR. CARIGNAN

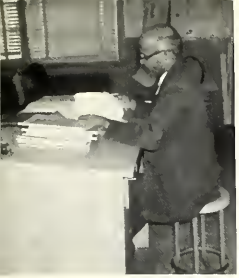
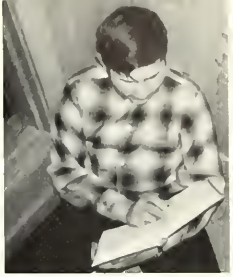
CHEMISTRY

Sing a song of sulphide,
A beaker full of lime,
Four and twenty test tubes,
Breaking all the time.
When the top is lifted,
The fumes begin to reek--
Isn't that an awful mess
To go through every week?

MR. KHALADKAR
What is this?





MAYBE!

'Twas the night before
That dreadful exam,
And into my head
Must everything cram.
So with books piled high
And papers near,
That dreadful test
I began to fear.

But before I start
I really should
Get some cookies and cakes
To make things good.
A pillow or two
And an easy chair,
That's all one needs,
To get marks fair.

The clock creeps round,
'tis now past nine.
Just to get started,
And all will be fine.
But there is the radio
Looking so dead,
Why not get some music
Before more is said.

Now slump down into my chair
And gaze far into space,
And wonder how that exam
I'll ever face.
The class pins I've dreamed of
Sprout wings so fast,
But I hope that in the future
I can boast that I passed.

I pick up a book
In one lone, last attack.
And come to the conclusion
That it's brains that I lack.
So into the corner
All books I now chuck,
And hope that I pass
By some "streak of luck."

VALEDICTORY

Often your tasks will be many,
And more than you think you can do...
Often the road will be rugged
And the hills insurmountable,too...
But always remember, the hills ahead
Are never as steep as they seem,
And with Faith in your heart start upward
And climb 'til you reach your dream,
For nothing in life that is worthy
Is ever too hard to achieve
If you have the courage to try it
And you have the Faith to believe...
For Faith is a force that is greater
Than knowleage or power or skill
And many defeats turn to triumph
If you trust in God's wisdom and will...
For Faith is a mover of mountains,
There's nothing that God cannot do,
So start out today with Faith in your heart
And "Climb 'Til Your Dream Comes True!"

As I look back tonight it seems only but a short time ago, that we were starting High School. How the last four years have sped!

What one of us will forget grade nine and the joys of being initiated, not only on Initiation Day, but during the entire year? So many things were new to us and we had so much to learn. In our Freshie year, the teachers all said: "This is the worst grade nine class we've ever had." Of course when we were in grade ten, we were the worst grade ten class, and so on. I think this year they finally gave up on us!!

But, regardless, of our scraps and mischiefs, we somehow managed to survive grade nine and now we were sophisticated sophomores, busily taking an active part in school activities and so the years raced by and before we knew it we were Juniors, looking with envy on the grade twelve students. And all too soon it was our turn. We were the Seniors. But it was to be our last football game, our last drama night,our last of everything at Wesley Central.

But we threw ourselves energetically into the events of the year. We put our heart and soul into the old familiar cheer: "Go Flyers Go." We played our best at basketball and before we knew it, our school days were ending and tonight we are biding them farewell.

Although tonight is our graduation, there are many others who are sharing in our happiness--and among these are our parents. Our parents are proud tonight and well they deserve to be, for without their help and guidance, I'm sure none of us would be here tonight. You-our parents-have been beside us during our sensitive years of growing up-you shared our joy over our first date; you cried with us over our heartaches, which seem so meager now, but at the time seemed so important; and you laughed with us when we were happy with the mere joy of living and being young. And so tonight, I find it so hard to express our deep gratitude for all you've done. And so I'll just say a simple "thank you" and I hope in the future that we can continue to live up to your expectations.

There are also our teachers here tonight and again it is hard to find a way to express our gratitude. I guess the best thing to say would be: "thanks for putting up with us!" Seriously though, we'd like to thank you for your concern and your determination to get us through, when most of the time we've seemed to be fighting against you and against an education. But now, we can appreciate the value of an education and so we thank you.

And now a few words about my fellow graduates:
Viola was our "brain." She supplied a lot of competition, of which the rest of us weren't always so thankful for.
Darlene was our singer. Of course that is when she managed to make it to School.
Allan was the suave, silent type.
Grace and Judy were our workers, who were always ready to lend a helping hand.
Vikas and Ken were our mad scientists. Sometimes we wondered if we would ever survive chemistry lab!
Mary was always quiet--but always working.
Linda--well we never saw too much of Linda because she was either running to the telephone or teaching music lessons.
Dave was our athlete. Well, you name it,Dave could do it.
Bev was always ready with a joke, a fantastic story, well just about anything to fill in time in spares.
And Dianne was always the first to laugh, and laugh, and laugh.

But our times together are now ending and we are at the crossroads, looking to the future. The road we choose will make all the difference in the years to come. For we can choose the broad highway or the narrow pathway. The way we choose will depend on what we are searching for, for the future will be what we alone make it. What one of us do not want fame and fortune--but this alone will never satisfy. We must set a goal and strive for it--but we must not get so wound up in material things that we forget all else. For some of the richest and most famous people in the world today are the loneliest. For without friendship, faith, and happiness, is life really worth living?

"If you can't be a highway then just be a trail
If you can't be the sun be a star;
It isn't by size that you win or you fail--
Be the best of whatever you are!"

And so as we face the future tonight, we should listen to the words of Emily Dickinson and apply them to our own lives:

"If I can stop one heart from breaking,
I shall not live in vain;
If I can ease one life the aching
Or cool one pain,
Or help one fainting robin
Unto his nest again
I shall not live in vain."

As I stand here tonight and see the faces of my friends, I recall the wiener-roasts, the little get-to-gethers and the serious talks we've had. It is hard to shut the doors on these, the things that have been and shall be no more. We do not know whether our paths shall cross again, but those dear memories shall make us kin forever--you and I.

And so in the years ahead we are all going to be searching for our dreams. It'll take a lot of hard work, determination and there'll probably be some heartache--but it'll be worth it. For some day; each and everyone of us, in our own way will find our dreams and our pot of gold, at the end of our rainbow.
